Dear Officer,

Thank you for your time reading this reference letter written for Wenbo Zhao.

This is Professor Guangjie Han working at the School of Software Technology, Dalian University of Technology. According to the academic performance of Wenbo Zhao as an undergraduate student since Oct. 2017, I would like to make a strong recommendation for him.

In my view, it was invaluable for Wenbo to participate in research as a freshman in the year 2017. As young as Wenbo was, he learned conscientiously, discussing with his supervisor and other professors in a high frequency, and absolving the latest developments of the industry from what his predecessors share in the weekly meetings. The positive attitude that he holds constantly is quite moving for all of us.

Later in the 2020 Spring semester, he took my course Sensor Network and Wireless Network Technology. Wenbo treated every lesson seriously although the course was online due to the pandemic. His final coursework was done in a high quality, which ensured him to get 88 points.

Constantly, Wenbo has been highly devoted to scientific research that always read materials or programmed from morning to night proceeding with his tasks. Besides, he could also analyze like a mature researcher proposing his ideas lately, which is definitely beneficial for starting a graduate program abroad.

It is evident that Wenbo Zhao is much more excellent than most undergraduate students that I have taught or supervised, so that I would like to make my recommendation without hesitation for all the programs that he is applying for in this application season. Please feel free to contact me if you would like to know more about him!

Regards,
Guangjie Han
